

Recall Procedure

Our recall procedure is managed by Columbia Fruit Packers. They are responsible for performing a mock recall of our product at least annually. Their recall program has been certified to be compliant with SQF and federal standards.

As a grower we understand that our role in this recall program is to provide the packer with a uniquely identifiable marking on all product produced at this location. This is known as our “grower number”. Using this number along with the processing, storage and shipping records managed by Columbia Fruit Packers, they are able to trace the product from their customer, the retailer, back to our orchard. Using our harvest records and shipping records we are able to trace the product to determine place and time of harvest.

A mock recall of the traceability system showing the distributor and the grower is performed at least once per year. The most recent mock recall is included in this manual.
