

Health Checks for Workers Who are in Contact With PPPs

All chemical workers are submitted to ChE testing at the beginning of the year. In accordance with the testing program their exposure time is monitored and if appropriate, additional testing is done. If an issue of contamination is present then the worker is removed from chemical handling duties until medical certification allows him to resume his duties.

Records that verify testing was completed are available for review.